Yndarena was a woman we still hold dear. She was our grandmother's companion in the kitchen.
She taught us that rosemary is a symbol of love and memory.
We loved watching her cook. Whatever she was making, she hummed softly and put her whole heart into it.
For her, cooking was an act of love. The kind that leaves its mark on memory. Like rosemary.
"If this wooden spoon could talk," she'd say, laughing, "it could tell the whole story of my life."
Today, her old wooden spoons and the copper pot where she made her magical jams still keep us company in our kitchen. And with them, our happiest memories.
In that same spirit, this brand was born, and it carries her name. We believe that what is made with love endures.
Like Yndarena and her rosemary.
